ACADEMIC JOB SEARCH:
TALKING ABOUT TEACHING IN THE INTERVIEW
FOR GRADUATE STUDENTS

Wednesday, December 11, 3:30 to 5 p.m.,
Frist Campus Center, 330

While graduate students and post-doctoral fellows receive ample opportunity to present their doctoral research in forums such as departmental colloquia or national conferences, they rarely talk about teaching and pedagogy in such public settings. As a result, they may lack the preparation for speaking about their teaching in compelling terms when it counts the most: the job interview. This workshop gives participants the chance to begin—or refine—that preparation and provides tools and resources for continuing that preparation up to the campus visit. Cosponsored with the McGraw Center.

Space is limited, kindly RSVP at http://bit.ly/1cgX7Ql.