Join John Weeren, director of Princeton Writes, and Amy Pszczolkowski, graduate student career counselor, in a safe and supportive environment to build upon your public speaking skills. In this fun and interactive session, everyone will have an opportunity to practice and learn from one another, developing verbal fluency and confidence though collective feedback. The last session for summer is August 21. We will begin a new series in the fall. Come when you are able, and you do not need to commit to all sessions. Please bring a lunch and we’ll provide the dessert.
