Are you looking for your next research opportunity? The Japanese Society for the Promotion of Science (JSPS) conducts fellowship programs for foreign researchers to promote international cooperation in and mutual understanding through scientific research in Japan. These programs provide opportunities for U.S. eligible foreign researchers to conduct cooperative research under their Japanese host researchers. Representatives will be on-campus to answer questions and meet with graduate students and postdoctoral scholars. Link to the programs: http://jspsusa.org/fellowship.html.
